

Stealthing is a crime

New consent laws

New consent laws commenced in Queensland on 23 September, 2024.

The affirmative model of consent requires free and voluntary discussion and agreement to take part in a sexual activity.

What is stealthing?

Stealthing is when you agree to a sexual activity on the basis that a condom is used and the other person:

- does not use a condom
- removes the condom
- tampers with the condom

or becomes aware that the condom is no longer effective but continues with the sexual act.

Whether stealthing happens before or during the sexual activity it is considered a circumstance where there is no consent and it is sexual assault or rape.
